April is Financial Literacy Month

The month of April, ten years ago, was declared Financial Literacy Month by the United States Senate. The decision of designating April as Financial Literacy Month was done to educate Americans about their personal finances. With so many Americans experiencing financial difficulty, living paycheck to paycheck, with no extra cash, it is important to be smart with your money. Health Insurance Terms Made Easy

With the recent adoption and implementation of the Affordable Care Act, millions of Americans are now enrolled in health insurance and can enjoy the benefits of being covered. However, a disturbing 42% of Americans are unable to properly define what a deductible is, 62% of Americans are incapable of distinguishing between an HMO and a PPO, and 37% of Americans are completely unaware of the penalty they will face for not having health insurance.

While having health insurance is beneficial and now required by law, Americans need to know what they are paying for and how they can best utilize all of their benefits. Here are some important terms every American should know - click here to view the list on our blog.

Developing a Small Business Disaster Recovery Plan

Businesses that are forced to close down following a disaster run the risk of never being able to open their doors again. While there's no way to lower the risk of a natural disaster like a hurricane, there are critical measures that can be taken to protect your company's bottom line from nature's fury. A disaster plan and adequate insurance are keys to recovery. Click here to view more on the Insurance Information Institute's website.
